

School to Work Transition Program for students ages 16 through graduation.

Creating employment opportunities for high school students with disabilities.

Focusing on providing a support system for high school students with disabilities, Inroads School to Work Transition Program works with students from ages 16 through graduation to explore the world of work. Through a variety of opportunities from paid work experiences to vocational training activities, students learn what it means to be a successful employee.

Inroads Transition Program works with local business partners to provide a mix of activities and experiences that focus on work. We mix "learn-by-doing," hands on classroom activities with employment readiness training at actual work sites. Our program respects each student's individuality and creates a pathway to employment success.

Inroads collaborates with students, parents, school staff and adult service providers such as the NJ Department of Developmental Disabilities and the NJ Division of Vocational Rehabilitation Services to ensure seamless transition from school to work.
